

Kathleen 4C (3)

A Scene at a Restaurant

Yesterday you went to a restaurant for dinner. While you were waiting for your friends in the restaurant, you overheard a couple's conversation, "... It's all your fault! ..." They were obviously arguing. Describe what happened. Write about 150 words.

I focused on the cigarette that lay beside the angry couple's table. It didn't seem like much if you weren't paying attention to the couple. But that one cigarette was the very source of how the couple's argument started.

"What?"

"You heard me! It's your fault!"

I held my head up. The woman was tightening her grip on a glass of red wine as the man hid something inside his jacket. A pack of cigarette? "For what? I didn't do anything!" The man exclaimed, trying to hide the pack of cigarettes from his wife. But it didn't work on her.

"YOU DID! I CAUGHT YOU SOMETHING! YOU TOLD ME YOU'D STOP!"

"B-but-"

"YOU PROMISED!" The woman screeched as she threw the glass of wine to her husband. The man ducked. The glass shattered on the wall behind him, crystals shimmering next to his chair.

Everyone who was entering stared. But none of the waiters cared. The man looked spaced out. "Things aren't what they seem," he said blankly. "OH RIGHT! I'M SUPPOSED TO BELIEVE YOU AFTER YOU PROMISED?!"

The man sighted and took a cigarette out. He then pulled apart the paper and shoved what remind of the cigarette to his wife.

CHOCOLATE. The tobacco had been chocolate!

The wife said absolutely nothing after that, and left the restaurant, embarrassed.

