Do you enjoy building, stacking and precise strategy? If you do, this game is the perfect fit for you! Jenga is a fun, family-friendly game suitable for game nights, family gatherings and sleep overs with friends when things get boring, no matter how many people there are.

Jenga consists of hardwood blocks stacked together into a tower where players take turns taking one block out, typically played by two to four people, but the more the merrier! The goal of the game is to keep taking turns taking a block out until eventually the whole tower collapses- usually played in rounds of three, the loser has no definite punishment and is usually decided by the winners on what they should do, whether it's telling a secret or doing chores, the decision is made by the winners altogether.

Overall, Jenga is a great multi-player game teaching smart thinking and well thought decisions. If you're interested in this classic game of hardwood blocks, go check it out!
