

What SEKSS (WK) Means to Me

Writing Competition to Celebrate the 25th Anniversary of SEK School Campus

By Eraes Jericho Diwa (6A)

Sir Ellis Kadoorie Secondary School (West Kowloon) is more than just a place where I go for classes. It truly feels like a second home. On my very first day, I was welcomed by a diverse community that celebrates different cultures and backgrounds. This lively environment has taught me to appreciate the uniqueness of everyone around me, helping me form friendships that I genuinely cherish.

One of the most important lessons I've learnt at SEKSS (WK) is the power of teamwork. Whether we're competing in sports competitions or rehearsing for a school performance, I've realized that working together with my friends brings out the best in all of us. Those moments of brainstorming ideas and supporting one another have not only enhanced my learning but have also created memories I will carry with me forever.

Beyond academics, SEKSS (WK) has given me a strong sense of duty to give back to our school community. I've had wonderful opportunities to engage in activities that allow me to connect with my friends in meaningful ways. For instance, I've really enjoyed mentoring younger students, helping them with their studies, teaching them a sport, and being there for them when they face challenges. It's incredibly rewarding to see their progress and to know that I've made a positive difference in their lives. I've also participated in sports events, where I not only joined as a competitor but also cheered on my schoolmates, encouraging a sense of team spirit and friendship. These experiences have shown me how even small gestures can make a difference. They have inspired me to be more proactive in supporting those around me and in creating a caring community within our school.

Looking ahead, I want to contribute even more by creating a mentorship programme. I envision older students helping younger ones navigate the ups and downs of school life, from academic pressure to social challenges. By fostering connections and providing support, I aim to cultivate a stronger sense of community in which everyone feels a true sense of belonging.

To sum up, SEKSS (WK) has a profound impact on my life. It has shaped my character and contributed to my personal growth. I am grateful for the lessons I've learnt and the friendships I've formed and I am looking forward to continuing to support the growth of this wonderful school community.
